

WHAT IS MEDIATION?

Mediation is an informal, inexpensive, and confidential process for resolving disputes quickly. The mediator acts as an impartial third party who assists the parties in face-to-face meetings to work out a mutually acceptable solution.

There are two types of mediation available: 1) facilitative; and 2) evaluative. In facilitative mediation, trained mediators facilitate discussions between parties and assist participants in memorializing perspectives. Evaluative mediation is a form of mediation conducted by trained mediators who possess subject matter expertise in the Hawaii condominium law and have extensive experience mediating disputes. The mediators have knowledge of the relevant case law and apply it to the facts of the mediation, providing candid and informed assessments of each party's position. The mediators facilitate discussion and assist in the parties' attempts to reach agreement by giving objective feedback and suggestions on options for resolution.

ARE THERE ADVANTAGES IN MEDIATION?

- Inexpensive;
- Expedient;
- Parties control the solutions;
- Solutions are tailored to needs of parties;
- Confidential process by mediators with knowledge of the condominium law;
- Scheduled at convenience of parties;
- Even if dispute is not completely resolved, mediation often defuses hostilities, clarifies issues, and expands options; and
- Small Claims Court, arbitration, and litigation are still options if unable to resolve dispute through mediation.

IS MEDIATION MANDATORY?

Section 514B-161, HRS, requires mediation if a condominium owner or the board of directors requests mediation of a dispute involving the interpretation or enforcement of an association's declaration, bylaws or house rules.

IS THERE A COST FOR MEDIATION?

There is a nominal fee. The Real Estate Commission (Commission) established a trust fund, the Condominium Education Trust Fund, which is used for educational purposes, including mediation. Subject to availability of these monies, subsidized mediation services are available through the mediation providers listed in this brochure for eligible parties and eligible issues.
