9 A.M. UPDATE: Repair crews continue restoration work to restore power to Chinatown, parts of downtown

HONOLULU, June 18, 2024 – Hawaiian Electric crews continue to work on restoring electric service to customers in the Chinatown area and other portions of downtown Honolulu who lost power shortly before 9 p.m. Monday. The outage resulted from a fire that damaged underground cables in several locations. Approximately 3,000 customers are out of power.

Crews hope to start restoring power to some areas by early to mid-afternoon. The company will continue to issue updates on the progress of repairs.

This outage does not include as much of downtown Honolulu as the outage that occurred on June 13 and most office buildings, including government buildings and courthouses, have power.
