Correspondence

LPNs "Working" with Central Lines

The Board reviewed an email correspondence regarding LPNs working with central lines. The following are the four questions asked and the Board's responses:

1. Can an LPN be determined: able to perform the skill of routine dressing change on a central line, as ordered by a MD, if this LPN is educated for this skill by an RN who is educated and experienced in performing the skill of a routine dressing change on a central line? The Board determined that wound changes could be performed by an LPN and that any task delegated by an RN to an LPN is the RN's responsibility to verify the LPN's competency and that only an RN is authorized to do an assessment, not an LPN.
2. Can an LPN be determined: able to perform the skill of drawing blood from a central line, as ordered by a MD, if this LPN is educated for this skill by an RN who is educated and experienced in performing the skill of drawing blood from a central line? No.
3. Can an LPN be determined: able to perform the skill of flushing a central line, as ordered by a MD, if this LPN is educated for this skill by an RN who is educated and experienced in performing the skill of drawing blood from a central line? No.
4. In regards to the boards interpretation that "working with central lines may be beyond the scope of practice for an LPN as this is not necessarily a basic nursing task as there may be a need for assessment".....The initial performance of the stated skills by the said LPN would be directly observed by the said RN to determine initial competency. Proficiency would then be assessed annually when proficiency is assessed for RN's* would this then allow for these skills to be determined within the LPN's scope of practice? No.

The Board's responses above are for informational and explanatory purposes only and is not an official opinion or decision and therefore is not to be viewed as binding on the Board.

Medication Administration – Delegation – Deferred to September 4, 2014 Meeting

APRNs administering vs. dispensing non-controlled prescriptions to their own patients

The Board reviewed an email inquiry asking if an APRN can administer non-controlled prescriptions to their patients in their own office and what is the difference between dispensing and administering medications

The EO stated right now APRNs with prescriptive authority are not allowed to dispense drugs to their patients; they can only dispense drug samples. A wholesale distributor may not sell her the drugs she needs because she is not authorized to dispense drugs.

The Chair does not understand what she is asking the Board.

The EO stated if an APRN-Rx is in private practice, how they are administering drugs without being able to dispense them.

The Chair stated they give a prescription to their patient, the patient fills it at a pharmacy, and if it has to be administered by the APRN-Rx the patient brings it to the APRN.

The EO asked if this is an issue the Board would like to look into eventually; to allow an APRN-Rx to have non-controlled drugs in their possession to dispense to their patients.

The Chair stated we can look into it but she does not think it is a priority issue.

It was the Board consensus to refer inquiry to the laws and rules and that APRN-Rx are not authorized to dispense drugs. This issue will also be referred to the Practice Committee for their review.
