Core A 2021-2022

Core A 2021-2022, “Fair Play in Fair Housing: It’s Not a Game, It’s the Law” is being developed and is projected to be available by July, 2021. The Train-the-Trainer session for Core A will be held Thursday, June 24, 2021, via ZOOM, courtesy of the Honolulu Board of REALTORS®. Registration is now open and the information sent to all CE Providers.

CE Providers: Please be sure to pass on the registration information to all of your CE instructors!

Core B 2021-2022 will feature the topic of “misrepresentation,” title yet to be determined. Core B will be developed in 2022.

INSTRUCTORS DEVELOPMENT WORKSHOP (IDW)

For the next Instructors Development Workshop, what would be a worthwhile topic to offer? The past two IDWs were presented by Theresa Barnabei on technology in the classroom and how to present a “stellar” class in this age of Covid-19.

1. Would an IDW on more technology in the classroom be too much of the same thing?
2. Suggestions for an IDW topic(s)?
3. Suggestions for a presenter for the next IDW?

Your input is appreciated. Please submit any suggestions to roster@dcca.hawaii.gov.

RICO and the Disciplinary Process for Real Estate Licensees By The Regulated Industries Complaints Office

Each quarter you are able to review in this publication, summaries of disciplinary actions that have been imposed on licensees by the Real Estate Commission. As a licensed real estate professional, you are required to follow state laws and rules regulating your profession or you could be disciplined by the Real Estate Commission (Commission). The Regulated Industries Complaints Office or RICO, a division within the Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs (the Department), is the investigative and prosecutorial agency for the licensing boards located within the DCCA, including the Commission. RICO, together with the Commission, enforces the laws and rules regulating your profession.

As investigator, RICO receives and screens thousands of complaints and inquiries yearly involving licensees. Many of the complaints are investigated. As prosecutor, RICO will take some of the investigated complaints and attempt to pursue disciplinary action against licensees through a negotiated settlement or a contested case hearing. As prosecutor, RICO does not have the power to discipline real estate licensees; only the Commission can do that accepting a proposed settlement agreement that was negotiated between RICO and the licensee, or through issuing a final order based on a recommended decision that followed a contested case hearing, under Chapter 91 HRS, between RICO and the licensee. Chapters 467 and 436B HRS contain the different disciplines that RICO can seek against a licensee and that can be imposed by the Commission.

Not all RICO complaints against licensees will result in discipline. Still, many complaints are filed every year, all are unique, and each of them must be screened or evaluated separately by RICO staff. Many end quickly for technical reasons, such as the dispute or issue does not fall within the laws enforced by RICO, many are withdrawn, many may end after the parties are able to work out a misunderstanding. Many will not meet the evidentiary threshold for proving a violation. For those that do, RICO will put on its prosecutor hat and may pursue discipline.

How can you avoid being on RICO's radar? Be familiar with the legal requirements for maintaining your license. You were required to learn about the laws governing licensees when you obtained your license, but that may have been the last time you familiarized yourself with the licensing laws and rules. Periodically read Hawaii Revised Statutes Chapters 436B and 467, and Hawaii Administrative Rules, Title 16, Chapter 99, so that you know the legal standards governing your privilege to serve customers and clients who engage in real estate transactions in Hawaii. You can access the licensing laws and rules through the "HRS/HAR" tab located at the top of DCCA's Real Estate Branch's homepage.

Remember too that Chapter 467 HRS regulates your conduct respecting real estate transactions even when you are not representing a client or assisting a customer but are involved in a personal transaction.

Finally, if you happen to be the subject of a RICO complaint, please cooperate. A licensee can be disciplined by the Commission for failing to cooperate during the investigations process.

More information about RICO can be found at their website: <https://cca.hawaii.gov/rico/>.

REMOTE PROCTORING STATISTICS

PSI MONTHLY STATS

1/21/21 – 2/28/21

	Remote	% Pass	Test Site	% Pass
Broker National	6	50%	18	44%
Broker State	24	38%	30	43%
Salesperson National	157	42%	290	33%
Salesperson State	164	31%	312	35%

Remote proctoring by PSI, the test vendor for the Hawaii Real Estate Commission, was approved and implemented in March 2021. It was initially viewed as a positive step forward to accommodate PSI testing, especially if the Neighbor Island test sites were unable to open and operate on their pre-Covid-19 schedules.

As with anything new, there were numerous hiccups once the remote proctoring commenced. Technology issues, whether attributed to the tester's available technology, or "acts of God," or PSI-related-issues did occur. Some candidates experienced frustrating halts in the testing, re-tests, and rescheduling of tests.

The Commission will receive monthly reports from PSI regarding the remote testing. Based on the first report received, it appears that the remote proctoring process does not afford undue advantages to testers.

Prelicense Schools should report complaints from their students regarding the remote proctoring to the Real Estate Branch.
