ADVERTISING PRACTICES FOR PRELICENSE SCHOOLS

Have a question regarding ADVERTISING as it relates to prelicense schools? Here are sections from the Hawaii Administrative Rules (HAR), Chapter 99, Subchapter 5 Registered Real Estate Schools, that outline advertising practices for prelicense schools.

Please observe the following:

HAR §16-99-66 Advertising. (a) For purposes of this subchapter, "advertising" means an announcement by an accredited real estate school for the purpose of promoting the school or soliciting students and shall include, but not be limited to, all printed, audio, and visual communications, such as newspaper advertisements, direct public mailings, books and periodicals, television and radio commercials, current and future technology, and others.

(b) All advertisements soliciting students shall be of an announcement type listing, at the minimum, the place where a school catalogue or brochure may be obtained.

(c) Prior to publication and dissemination, all schools shall submit to the commission for review all copies or proofs of advertising, brochures, and promotional materials covering its real estate course.

(d) The commission, at any time may require that a school furnish proof of any of its advertising claims. Retractions of advertising claims may be ordered by the commission, with the retractions published in the same manner as the claims themselves.

(e) A school shall be held strictly responsible for the acts and promises of all its agents or persons engaged in soliciting students.

HAR, Chapter 99 further outlines prohibited advertising practices for prelicense schools.

Please observe the following:

HAR §16-99-68 Prohibited advertising practices. (a) No school shall provide any information to the public or to prospective students which is false, misleading, or deceptive. Information is "misleading" when there may be a possibility that it will deceive the class of persons whom it is intended to influence.

(b) No school shall use any name, other than the name under which it registered with the commission, for advertising or publicity purposes.

(c) No school shall advertise that it is "recommended," "endorsed," "approved," or "accredited" by the commission. A school may indicate that it is "registered" with the commission to conduct courses to qualify applicants for the real estate license examination.

(d) No school shall make any warranties or guarantees that a student will pass the real estate license examination by taking its course.

(e) No school shall advertise that it is endorsed by business establishments, organizations, or individuals engaged in the kind of work for which training is given until written evidence of this fact is filed with the commission.

(f) No school shall solicit students in "help wanted" or other employment columns in newspapers or other publications or in any other form of advertising other than that which shows itself clearly to be that of a school seeking to enroll students.

(g) No school shall make or imply any guarantee of employment or income to any student or prospective student unless the school can in fact guarantee employment or income and the school does so in writing.

(h) No school shall advertise a course of instruction which has not been approved by the commission unless the advertisement clearly states that it is a "proposed" or "tentative" offering, subject to the approval of the commission. No money shall be collected from any prospective student for enrollment in such a course until it has been approved by the commission.

Please observe the following:

HAR §16-99-113 Advertising. (a) For purposes of this subchapter, "advertising" means an announcement by a continuing education provider for the purpose of promoting itself as a provider or for soliciting students and includes, but is not limited to, all printed and visual communications, such as newspaper advertisements, direct public mailings, books and periodicals, television and radio commercials, and others.

(b) All advertisements soliciting students shall be of an announcement type listing, and minimally, include the name and address of the continuing education provider, the place where a catalogue or brochure may be obtained, a brief description of the course, a statement that the course can be used for satisfying continuing education requirements, and the number of course hours approved for continuing education.

(c) A continuing education provider shall keep on file at its place of business all advertising materials, subject to inspection and review by the commission upon written request.

(d) A continuing education provider shall not be advertised or be represented as having been "registered" with the commission until the provider has received written notification of its registration from the commission.

- (e) All advertising materials and claims shall be free from misrepresentation and fraud.
- (f) The commission, at any time, may require that a continuing education provider furnish proof of any of its advertising claims. Retractions of advertising claims may be ordered by the commission, with the retractions published in the same manner as the claims themselves.
- (g) A continuing education provider shall be held strictly responsible for the acts and promises of its agents who solicit students
